

UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN
RIVER FALLS

Sociology, Criminology, and Anthropology

333 Kleinpell Fine Arts | P: (715) 425-3992 | E: sociology@uwrf.edu

Full details and application process available here: <https://jobs.uwrf.edu/postings/8491>.

Description: University of Wisconsin-River Falls Department of Sociology, Criminology, and Anthropology invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Criminology position beginning August 2023. The primary responsibilities include introductory and advanced criminology courses, with an emphasis on courses related to policing/law enforcement.

RESPONSIBILITIES:

- Teaching load is 12 credits per semester.
- Primary course responsibilities include introductory and advanced criminology courses, with an emphasis on courses related to policing/law enforcement.
- Teach courses that compliment and extend departmental offerings based on educational background, interests, and departmental needs, including statistics and research methods.
- New curricular initiatives may include development of undergraduate courses and on-line courses as appropriate.
- Serve as academic advisor to undergraduate students within the department.
- Participate in faculty governance and service activities at the departmental, college and university levels.
- Engage in scholarly activity. Such activities are broadly defined and may address the scholarship of research within the field of expertise, the scholarship of teaching, or similar activities.

KNOWLEDGE, SKILLS AND ABILITIES:

- PhD in Criminology, Criminal Justice, or in Sociology with a specialization in Criminology/Criminal Justice is required by June of 2024. ABD candidates with Master's degree are encouraged to apply.
- Strong interest in and ability to teach introductory and advanced undergraduate courses in criminology and criminal justice, with an emphasis on courses related to policing/law enforcement.
- Ability to teach statistics and research methods courses.
- Strong, effective oral and written communication skills.
- Potential for or demonstrated expertise in university teaching.
- Potential for or demonstrated research, scholarly, and/or creative activity.
- Demonstrated awareness of and sensitivity to diverse student populations and ability to contribute to the University's commitment to enhancing student awareness and appreciation of diverse cultures, backgrounds, and identities.

